

A B S T R A C T

A disposable undergarment a topsheet, a backsheet and an absorbent core disposed therebetween. The core placed in a crotch region having front and rear end zones and a middle zone. Both side portions of a first elastic member extend in the vicinity of front ends of transversely opposite side edge portions while a middle portion of the first elastic member extend across the front end zone of the core. Both side portions of a second elastic member extend in the vicinity of rear ends of the transversely opposite side edge portions while a middle portion of the second elastic member extends across the rear end zone of the core. By such an arrangement of the first and second elastic members, the contraction of the first and second elastic members in the middle portions thereof is effectively used to maintain the front and rear end zones of a core in close contact with the wearer's skin.